

Multilevel networks: Structural properties and some applications

R. Criado†‡, J. Flores†‡, A García del Amo†‡ and M. Romance†‡

†Departamento de Matemática Aplicada (URJC), C/ Tulipán s/n 28933-Móstoles (Madrid.), Spain†

‡Centro de Tecnología Biomédica, Campus Montegancedo, 28223-Pozuelo de Alarcón (Madrid), Spain

*Corresponding author: regino.criado@urjc.es

ABSTRACT

The concept of multilevel network has been introduced in order to embody some topological properties of heterogeneous-type complex systems which are not completely captured by the classical models. In this work we present some metric and structural properties of multilevel networks, a new paradigm for networks with a mesoscaled structure, and some of its applications to technological and social networks.